INTRODUCTION

EUNIC London (European Union National Institutes for Culture) is the network of the cultural institutes and embassies from the member states of the European Union in London. We share knowledge and resources in order to promote greater cooperation and develop partnerships between European nations and British organisations.

EUNIC London is a proud initiator, organiser and supporter of creative projects highlighting Europe's fantastic diversity in languages, arts and culture.

We have always promoted European literature and supported translations into English. This year we are hosting a network reception at the London Book Fair in collaboration with the Romanian Cultural Institute as well as organising the European Writers 2019.

This publication offers a handy overview for literature professionals and publishers on the different translation and publishing grants that are available for European books to be translated into English (or any other language). You can find information on the different grants, schemes and organisations for most EU countries as well as relevant websites and contact details.

We hope that these resources will aide you in producing foreign language publications for a larger, international audience of readers.

AUSTRIA

There are several grants in support of the translation of Austrian literature provided by the Austrian Federal Chancellery, Department for Culture and the Arts and other institutions.

Grant for the Cost of Translation: This grant provides funding for the translation of contemporary Austrian literature and authors in the fiction category, and must be applied for by the foreign publishing house. Awards are given based on the quality of the publisher's work, and applications are accepted on a rolling basis. For more information:

BELGIUM – WALLONIA-BRUSSELS

The Department for promoting Belgian literature supports the translation of literary works written by French speaking Belgian authors from the Federation Wallonia-Brussels. This refers to novels, short stories, poetry, plays, children literature, comic books and literary essays.

This may involve a grant to foreign editors publishing French-speaking Belgian authors or a residence for foreign translators. Foreign publishers can apply for financial assistance to cover 75% of the translation costs as long as it concerns the translation of French-speaking Belgian authors. Grants are limited to the actual cost of translation, taking into account current translation rates in the country in question. Editorial costs and printing costs are not subsidised.

The next deadline for the applications is the 31st May 2019.

BELGIUM - FLANDERS

Flanders Literature creates awareness on literature from Flanders abroad. One of its activities is to award grants to publishers, translators and festival organisers.

Flanders Literature supports foreign publishers with translation grants in order to publish titles written by Flemish authors or illustrated by Flemish artists. Special conditions apply for drama, poetry and illustrated books (picture books and graphic novels). Applications may be submitted throughout the year, and must be received at least three months before the printing of the book.

Flanders Literature may also pay for travel costs incurred by authors travelling abroad to promote their translated works. Applications may be submitted throughout the year, but must be received at least six weeks before the event takes place.

CZECH REPUBLIC

Support for publishing translations of Czech literature abroad is provided by the Ministry of Culture of the Czech Republic. Grants are available to publishers who wish to publish and translate Czech literature. Whilst grants may be awarded for poetry, prose, drama, essays, comics and children's literature, priority is given to the promotion of contemporary literature. The grants cover books, excerpts and magazines.

The grant is awarded by the Ministry based on recommendations by an expert committee considering the publisher's consistent interest in contemporary Czech literature, the translator's experience and the quality of the translated text. The publisher is required to complete an application form in English and provide contracts with the copyright holder and the translator; the translator's qualifications and CV (education, works translated);, and the publisher's publishing plans for the current and next calendar years.

Deadline: 15 May for books and excerpts to be published in the same year as the application is submitted; 15 November for those to be published in the following year after the application is submitted.

EUROPEAN COMMISSION

The objectives of the Creative Europe's Literary Translation scheme are to promote the transnational circulation of literature and its diversity in Europe and beyond and to expand the readership of quality translated books.

The scheme offers grants to eligible publishers for the co-financing of the translation, publication and promotion of a "package" of minimum 3 and maximum 10 works of fiction. The translation must be from, and into, eligible languages including languages officially recognised in EU Member States, EFTA countries, and from Albanian, Bosnian, Macedonian, Serbian, Montenegrin, Latin and Ancient Greek. The translation and promotion of books from lesser used languages into English, French, German or Spanish is encouraged as it increases the visibility of the books in Europe and beyond. The translation of books for which the authors have won the EU Prize for Literature is also encouraged.

The scheme is open to publishers and publishing houses with at least 2 years of existence, established in the EU or in other countries participating in the Creative Europe programme.

For the 2019 updates on the scheme please visit:

FINLAND

FILI – Finnish Literature Exchange promotes the publication of Finnish literature in translation around the world. Applications must be submitted via the online application form. The application form will be available on FILI’s website when each application round begins and taken down after the last day of each application round.

There are three application periods each year: 1 January – 1 February: online application closes at 23:59 (GMT +2) on the final day; 1 April - 1 May: online application closes at 23:59 (GMT +2) on the final day; and 1 October – 1 November: online application closes at 23:59 (GMT +2) on the final day.

A list of successful grant applications will be published on FILI’s website approximately two months after the end of each application period. Translated works may not be printed or published before the decisions have been made. If an application is successful, the translated book must include a mention of the FILI grant and the FILI logo.

FRANCE

Burgess Grant: Translation grant awarded by the Institut Français in the United-Kingdom once a year. British publishers apply directly to the book department in the UK from October to December, who then gathers a commission in January. The criteria for selection are literary quality of the text to be translated, consistency of the file and potential of the book for the British publishing market. We ask for the signed contracts for rights acquisition with the French publishing house and with the translator amongst other supporting documents.

Acquisition of rights grant: Awarded by the Institut Français in Paris twice a year. British publishers apply via the Book Office in the UK, who submits applications online and provides information and support. The commission meets twice a year: in February (closing date for the submission of projects in January) and in June (closing date for the submission of projects in May). Among the documents to provide, a contract for the transfer of copyright with a French publisher is essential. The advance must not have already been paid to the French publishers.

CNL grant in support of translation: Awarded by the French Ministry of Culture three times a year. For those works which it selects, the commission proposes a subsidy ranging between 40% and 60% of translation costs. French publishers who hold rights to the works in question submit the application to the French Ministry of Culture. Deadlines: 20 February for the May-June session, 10 June for the October session, 31 October for the January-February session.

GERMANY

Translation grant programme: The Goethe-Institut's 'Translations of German Books into Other Languages' funding programme, supports non-German publishers in publishing translated German-Language Literature, with the aim of making accessible to non-German-speaking readers current works of contemporary literature, books for children and young adults, academic titles and non-fiction works. Where an application for a translation grant is successful, the Goethe-Institut contributes part of the translation costs to the publisher, payable on publication of the translated work. Further information: goethe.de/uk/translationgrants

Translation prizes:

The Goethe-Institut Award for New Translation is presented by the Society of Authors and the Goethe-Institut London every two years. This translation prize is aimed at new and emerging translators, including those whose work has not yet been published. The translation competition is open to British translators of literature from German into the English language, including non-British translators who have been resident in the UK for the past three years. Further information: goethe.de/uk/translation-award

The Schlegel-Tieck Prize for German Translation is awarded annually for the best translation into English from German, published by a British publisher in the year prior to the award date. The prize is awarded in February/March at an awards ceremony in London, organized by the Society of Authors. The winner receives prize money of £3,000.

HUNGARY

Balassi Institute - Literary Translation Program: It is a 10-month long translation program, taking place in Budapest. Non-Hungarian, foreign citizens (with Hungarian language knowledge) can apply to this program, intended for university graduates who have chosen the translation of Hungarian literature and the promotion of Hungarian culture abroad as their career focus. While a practical introduction to literary translation forms the backbone of this program, in-depth instruction in Hungarian language and literature is also provided. The number of translations published throughout the years attests to the ability of the Institute's literary translation alumni. The deadline for submissions is 21 March 2019.

LITHUANIA

Lithuanian Culture Institute invites publishers to submit applications for Translation Grant Programme. The purpose of the Translation Grant Programme is to promote Lithuanian literature through granting foreign publishers for the translation of works from Lithuanian or which are related to Lithuania.

Translation grants are available twice a year for those who are interested in translating and publishing books by Lithuanian authors.

Publishers may apply for either partial or total coverage of the cost of the translation. Grants will be allocated for the translation of original works of literature, fiction, children's literature, publications on the cultural heritage, or the humanities (philosophy, literary criticism, non-fiction, history and other fields) as well as for the translation of other important books and publications.

The deadlines for applying are 1st April and 1st October.

NETHERLANDS

Translation grants: A foreign publisher can apply for financial support for the publication in translation of a Dutch work of fiction, non-fiction or poetry, or a graphic novel or children's book. This kind of subsidy is intended to encourage foreign publishers to publish Dutch literature in translation. One of the aspects of particular concern to the Dutch Foundation for Literature (DFL) is the quality of the translation. The Foundation can send the publisher upon request the List of Approved Translators. Should the Foundation be unfamiliar with the chosen translator, it will ask for a sample translation so that the quality of the work can be assessed.

Subsidy meetings are planned for April 9, May 21, July 9, August 27, October 8, November 19, December 12 2019. Applications must have been received at least ten days before the meeting at which they are to be discussed.

ROMANIA

The Romanian Cultural Institute's translation support programmes have been, for years, one of the most generous financial schemes of this kind in Europe and beyond. Launched in 2006, the Translation and Publication Support Programme (TPS) aims to support the access of foreign readers to Romanian written culture as well as to support the promotion of Romanian authors in the international book market. TPS offers may cover up to 100% of the translation costs and up to 9.000 Euros from the production costs related to the publication of fiction, poetry and other works by Romanian authors, including non-fiction books on visual arts, social sciences and the humanities.

The Publishing Romania financing programme was launched in 2007 to support publishing projects aimed at promoting Romanian culture abroad. The programme has two sections, each with specific objectives and selection criteria, and covers up to 75% of translation and copyright fees; and between 8.000 and 20.000 Euros of the production costs.

Submissions: 15 April - 15 September

SWEDEN

Swedish Literature Exchange is the Swedish Arts Council's international programme for literature. Its goal is to make it possible for more Swedish literature of high quality to be published abroad.

The support scheme is open to fiction, non-fiction, comics and graphic novels, as well as drama for children and adults. Grants are offered for translation costs or translation and production costs for foreign-language editions of Swedish books. One condition is that the work must be translated directly from Swedish or any of the national minority languages, rather than via a third language. Furthermore, Sweden must be the original country of publication. Applications for works written in Finland-Swedish that were originally published in Finland are handled by the Finnish Literature Exchange (FILI).

Deadlines: 5 February, 7 May, and 1 October 2019
